Chart of the day: CBoT Corn Dec 21

Yesterday, wheat on the Matif recovered after the initial losses, certainly also influenced by the publication of a new Egyptian tender, and then even reached a high of 286.00 €/t before closing at the previous day's level. The resistance of 285 €/t does not seem to be so easy to break. A similar picture emerged yesterday on the Matif for maize; initial losses were made up during the course of the day so that the future also closed here at the previous day's level of 244.00 €/t. The price of rapeseed also fell rapidly yesterday after the opening of the Matif - the previous day's level could not be maintained at the close of trading and the price lost 1.50 €/t. While in wheat the Matif followed the course on the Cbot yesterday, the Cbot corn rose strongly during the course of the day after the U.S. Energy Information Administration published bullish data on ethanol production. This triggered a series of technical buys that sent corn prices soaring by 2.5%.
