Chart of the day: Matif Wheat Dec 21

Due to the lack of bearish news, the markets continue to show firmness. The strength of the dollar is also a competitive factor for European goods, although the development of prices in Argentina must be closely monitored. Despite a significant price increase last week, Argentina remains a competitor for France in the North African market. Internationally, the USA sold almost 257,000 tonnes of soybeans to an undisclosed destination, while Iraq is buying 500,000 tonnes of wheat. Algeria is also tendering for wheat. On Euronext, wheat prices could test the psychological threshold of €300/t again on December expiry day. Note that December options expire today. Corn is up sharply due to harvest delays and drying difficulties. The dollar remains firm at 1.1460 against the euro and 72.60 against the rouble. Oil is losing some ground at 80 usd/barrel in New York. Wheat is slightly up in the US this morning.
